

Vitria to Add Support for HP Integrity Servers

Sunnyvale, Calif., February 15, 2007 - Vitria Technology, Inc. (Nasdaq: VITR), a leading provider of business process integration solutions, today announced plans to support the HP Integrity server product line and its supported operating systems including the new HP-UX 11i v3. The move allows Vitria to offer customers 64-bit processing power for its award-winning BusinessWare integration suite, as well as forthcoming software solutions.

“Many customers integrating complex business processes, particularly on service-oriented architectures (SOA), require the power and capabilities of a 64-bit platform such as HP Integrity servers running the new HP-UX 11i v3 operating environment,” said Susan Deeney, vice president, Channel Development at Vitria. “This combination provides the scalability, reliability, investment protection and performance that are critical for enterprise IT. We will support them later this year,” she added.

“Scalability and reliability are crucial elements in managing mission-critical applications,” said Nick van der Zweep, director, virtualization and Integrity server software, Technology Solutions Group, HP. “With the availability of the BusinessWare integration suite on HP Integrity servers running on HP-UX 11i v3, Vitria’s customers are able to better monitor and manage their complex business processes and leverage the high performance of the Integrity platform.”

Vitria is a business application and solution partner in the HP Developer and Solution Partner Program. HP is a Vitria solution provider that offers infrastructure technology and consulting services.
